

Perception and Action Neuropsychology

The Psy-NAPS research group of Professor Martin Edwards (IPSY, UCL) carries out research in perception and action neuropsychology. We would like to support internship research projects that investigate perception and action behaviour using virtual reality, robotic interaction and brain-computer interface methods. The internship project will be combined to an existing research project in the group. See the group's webpages for more details: <http://www.psy-naps.org/>.